WASHINGTON, June 18.—(R)—
Budget Director Harold D. Smith revealed today that America's arms factories are rolling so fast now that government war expenditures have climbed to approximately $1,000,000,000 per week.

"That shows," he said in an interview, "how we are going into action against the axis."

The accelerated pace of war production, Smith continued, "assures out hitting on the nose our estimate of $28,000,000,000 of war expenditures for the fiscal year which ends this month."

"NO SIDELINES WHEN WORLD IS ON FIRE" DECLARES CANDIDATE

JAMES V. ALLRED, SEEK-ING U. S. SENATORIAL POST, IS SPEAKER HERE

Asserting "there are no sidelines when the world is on fire," James V. Allred, former state and federal office holder, told a Corsicana audience Tuesday night in presenting his candidacy for the United States senate, that he was the first man since the late John Reagan to man since the late John Reagan to resign one job to run for another, and he was like the majority of the people of Texas, "tired of explaining the present junior senator" to people outside the state.

L. D. (Sadie) Ransom, chairman of the Navarro County Democratic Presentive committee was meeter.

of the Navarro County Democratic Executive committee, was master of ceremonies for the evening, and presented local candidates for office for brief announcements before the main speech of the evening.

Tyson Introduced Allred.

Tom L. Tyson, Corsicana attorney, introduced Judge Allred by attacking the record of the present office holder both in state and federal positions, and asserting it was time Texas was represented by two senators, and termed the candidate of the evening "a typical" candidate of the evening "a typical Texan," who was borned and reared in the state and can speak the lanin the state and can speak the language of the people.

Alired recalled he first appeared in Corsicana when he was 27 years old and a candidate for attorney general. He said he agreed with the thought that politics should be abandoned for the duration of the war but that patriolism could not be adjourned, and the ineffectives in all places must be weeded out. He insisted that he knew the cost of service and of the effects of war on little business men, and that the activities of the members of the senate during the next six years would have a vital effect on every individual.

years would have a vital effect on every individual.

Must Win War.

"We must win this war, and then write a peace that will effectively guarantee against the further tragedies of war," he asserted. He pledged himself to wholehearted support of President Franklin D. Borseyelt whom he termed head Roosevelt, whom he termed head and shoulders above all other fedtral officials, and declared the Japs would never have attacked Pearl Harbor if Roosevelt policies had been followed instead of the isolationist "Monday morning quarter-backs" in the senate.

Allred insisted he held no brief for labor racketeers but was for protecting the rights and privileges of every working man, and at-tacked the secret agreements be-tween U. S. firms and foreign governments which were termed "disgraces."

"disgraces."

The candidate repeated pledges made earlier in the campaign to work for free insurance, free transportation and laundry for men in the service, along with preferred employment for wives and dependent relatives of men in the service, and preferred jobs and educational opportunities when the men returned.

Must Take Lead.

Must Take Lead.

He declared the post-war conditions would be more dangerous than those of the present conflict recalling that Hitler rose to power in the days that followed World War I. He insisted that the United States must take the lead in writing and enforcing a peace that would prevent future wars, and charged that a bloc of selfish isolationist senators, some of whom remain in Washington, scuttled the opportunity of peace in 1919 and broke the heart of the world as well as that of Woodrow Wilson.

Again taking up O'Daniel's record in the senate, he asserted Roosevelt had offered a $20 bill to every aged person in Texas when the present office holder couldn't even vote for a measure to match the funds, and also that for two and a half years after O'Daniel was governor half of the pension funds came from revenue measures passed while he (Allred) was governor or. He also charged O'Daniel had joined with Wheeler, Nye, Clark and Vandenberg in opposing the extension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the pension of the selective service and the present of the present o joined with Wheeler, Nye, Clark and Vandenberg in opposing the extension of the selective service act, and that had it not been for a "fifth column" in the senate General MacArthur would have had a quarter of a million fully equipped men in the Philippines instead of

J. R. DONNELL FOR LEGISLATURE, HILL AND NAVAR-RO COUNTIES.

Many a man's career has been hurt by the little word "But."
Some are whispering around that I am probably better prepared for legislative duties than either of my opponents—but, my age is against me. Well, let's see about that. During the past 18 months I have built up one of the largest stocks of books, magazines and phonograph records in the state, increasing my sales proportionately. And during the same period I have found time to write dozens of articles for publication in newspapers and magazines, two of which articles will be published in the 1943 Year Book of Public Opinion, published in New York. newspapers and magazines, two of which articles will be published in the 1943 Year Book of Public Opinion, published in New York. Also during that same period I have written a "Model State Constitution," nearly a full page synopsis of which was published by the Dallas News, together with an editorial about it. Another large city daily paper commented editorially about it. And in addition to these writings during the same 18 months I wrote a full length political novel. Nor have I, during that time, neglected my newsboys and street waifs with whom I have for the past seven years, been making friends during the week, and teaching the Sunday mornings. I defy the youngest of my opponents to show where they have led a more active life during this time.

If you elect me to serve you in the legislature I promise to devote my full time during legislative sessions to the work—just as I did in 1931-32 when I served on five committees, being on the job often as late as 11 o'clock at night, while some of the younger members were out having a good time. Furthermore, I will continue my study of current legislative questions, which will probably come before the legislature next year.

VOTE FOR J. R. DONNELL, FOR LEGISLATURE, HILL AND NAVARRO COUNTIES. THE MAN THAT KNOWS HOW.

Corsicana has been designated as one of eight distribution points in Texas for 65 head of four-star bulls, one of the highest rated animals obtainable, which are being given to 4-H Club and FFA boys throughout Texas by the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Approximately 30 countles will be represented in the Corsicanu area. This city was selected at a meeting of the Texas Jersey Cattle Club Tuesday at Waco. The session was attended by Rouert G. Dillard, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, and Chas. A. Willmann, Corsicanu dairyman.

It is a long while since I have wonderfully healthful—and grand given you any analysis of foods— and since fresh garden vegetables pas have a large water content, are becoming wonderfully healthful—and grand for the complexion, too. Fresh pcas have a large water content, about 7.05 per cent protein, .53 per cent fat, and 15.2 per cent carbohydrate. Their chemical reaction is alkaline—making them a food to use freely and often.

Dried peas are a different story. Their carbohydrate content is high—57.5 per cent, fat 1 per cent, and protein 24.6 per cent—you see what happens when the water content is dried out—the percentages rise materially. They supply the same vitamins, with the exception of C, which is lost in dried peas—and C is important, too, you know. Dried peas are a highly concentrated food, and rather difficult to digest. Therefore, it is well to have fruit at any meal where one uses gried peas.

The Government now offers Joe Doe an opportunity to further the war-effort and help himself. During the naational campaign to collect all scrap rubber in the U.S., each of us must play a part. If enough scrap rubber is made available for retreading, we may be able to avoid a rigorous fuel control program.
